You hear nothing about it. It is the cost of transportation that makes a huge business seem necessary. I admit that in San Francisco melodrama is more popular than any other form of entertainment. Mr. Barnes of New York, was an enormous success in San Francisco. The San Franciscan judgment is not, of course, infallible Eastern and Western opinions will differ, but my experience has been that Eastern attractions are popular in the far West. We like Daly's company (although we did not appreciate The Foresters); we like Palmer's company, Cayvan and Kelcey, Harrigan, Sol Smith Russell, John Drew, the Liliputians and Denman Thompson. The fact that there is a 'kick' against California surprises me immensely."
